"Invest in beachfront property—it's a shore thing"

A businessman rented a cabin in the mountains to relax. One afternoon he went down to a lake to rent a boat. "How many miles per hour does this boat go?" he asked the attendant.

"That boat doesn't go miles per hour," answered the attendant. "It goes knots."

The man sighed. "If I wanted to go knots, I'd have stayed at the cabin and listened to my wife complain," he said as he walked away.

TED: I used to own a shipbuilding company. Now I own a peanut farm.

JED: Oh. You went from sloop to nuts.

MR. SMITH: I just opened a small seed packaging company.

MR. JONES: But why did you move into such a large building?

MR. SMITH: I'm allowing for possible future growth.

Jack and John were hopelessly lost in the burning hot desert. The two men had been crawling around in the sand for several days, looking for water. “I may be thirsty and hungry, but at least I have company,” Jack said to John. “I’m sure glad we bumped into each other on that sand dune four days ago.” Suddenly, Jack stood up and pointed to something ahead. “Look!” he shouted. “It’s a palm tree. We can relax in the shade.” Jack rushed to the tree and crawled out of the sun’s burning rays.

“Jack, that’s not a real tree, it’s a mirage,” John told his partner.

“Are you sure?” Jack asked.

“Yes,” John answered. “Close your eyes, count to 10, and it’ll disappear.”

Jack groaned. He closed his eyes. He counted to 10. When he opened his eyes, the tree was gone.

The two men crawled off in the sand once again. A bit later, Jack jumped up excitedly. "Look, John!" he shouted. "I see a pool of cool water ahead."

John shook his head. "No, Jack," he said sadly. "It's another mirage. Close your eyes. Count to 10. It'll vanish too." Jack shut his eyes and started to count. When he reached 10, he opened his eyes and the cool pool was gone from view. In its place was burning sand.

Jack was really mad. "Listen, Pal," he shouted angrily to John. "First you made my palm tree disappear. Next you made my cool water vanish. I'm so mad at you I'm about to lose my temper."

"Jack, control yourself," John urged. "Don't lose your temper. Close your eyes and count to 10." Since Jack really didn't want to hurt John, he obliged. He closed his eyes and started counting slowly. "I feel better now," Jack said when he reached 10. He opened his eyes and looked around anxiously. "John?" he cried frantically. "John! Where'd you go?"

ZEB: My twin brother chews tobacco and so do I.

JEB: I guess you're the spitting image of each other.

JENNY: My husband collects bugs and lets them crawl around the house. What should I do?

PENNY: Put your foot down more often.

Show me a woman who feeds her son Hans a big dinner...and I'll show you a mother who has her Hans full!

LITTLE FIREFLY: When will I be able to go out at night?

MOTHER FIREFLY: When you glow up.

MOTHER: I want you to make a big pot of mashed potatoes and do it right.

LAZY DAUGHTER: And what if I don't feel like doing it right?

MOTHER: Well, then you can lump it.

MOTHER: Rub-a-dub-dub...three men in a tub.

LITTLE GIRL: Now that's a stupid rhyme! Why didn't they take turns using the shower?

GRANDFATHER: The dish ran away with the spoon.

LITTLE GIRL: Wow! Talk about a mixed marriage.

MOTHER: The cow jumped over the moon and kept right on going.

LITTLE BOY: She probably headed for the Milky Way.

FATHER: There was an old woman who lived in a shoe.

SON: What did they use for carpeting? Odor Eaters?
